1. In late December 1951, the Soviet Air Force construction headquarters was located at Werder airfield. The conference building was located on Eisenbahnstrasse somewhere between No 130 and 140, next to the Kech building. Chief of the headquarters was a colonel who was no construction expert and never took part in technical discussions. Personnel of the staff included: Lieutenant Colonel Karnatovsky (fnu) about 50 years of age, who was in charge of finance and technical matters; Lieutenant Colonel Sukorukov (fnu), 45 to 50 years old, who was the key person working on all projects; Lieutenant Streltsov (fnu), 35 to 40, who was in charge of construction work at Werneuchen and Puetnitz; Major Olenik (fnu) about 30-35 years of age who was deputy to Streltsov; Lieutenant Colonel Abranov (fnu), about 35 years old, who was finance and project officer; and Captain Shudakov (fnu), about 30-35 years of age, who was liaison officer to the Deutsche Notenbank in Potsdam and in charge of material procurement. Before construction work could be started the plans had to be signed by officers of the Air Force construction headquarters in Werder. Interpreter Gramenz from the Brandenburg Bauunion reported that Colonel Vinogradov (fnu), previously stationed in Neuruppin, visited West Berlin in civilian clothes. Vinogradov was not seen since. *

2. On 2 February source prepared a sketch of the Werder restricted area showing all Soviet installations there.

3. On 3 March Werder airfield was not occupied by aircraft. Eight to 10 trucks were parked in front of the two hangars. Because of the board fence around the field and because of the distance (500 meters), [redacted] 25X1
- At 2:30 p.m. about 60 officers wearing blue and red epaulets entered a building, probably the officers mess, located north of the railroad station on Am Zernsee Strasse. About 15 Soviet women in uniforms with blue epaulets walked to Friedrichshoehe. [redacted] 25X1
